CPD modules [level 5] for teachers of maths and English GCSE resits

The package has been developed by the Foundation to provide a training programme to support teachers to deliver GCSE resit programmes in maths/English. We have devised two 10 session programme enabling providers to be able to run at their convenience in-house training programmes for their staff, and to facilitate this, we are providing everything the tutor would need to deliver them. However none of this is prescriptive and tutors should feel free to adapt and add to these resources as necessary. See the links below to download this material.

Teaching GCSE resits differs from linear maths in that the learners arrive with diverse views and knowledge about the subject. Recent regulatory changes have emphasised the demand for GCSEs and the Foundation is keen to support the sector to respond to this challenge. The programme has been designed with tutors holding level 3 subject skills in mind but providers will obviously make decisions as to who would best benefit from participation. Reference is also made to the Foundation's other support activities in the area of personal subject skills http://www.et-foundation.co.uk/supporting/support-practitioners/ .

These two packages, maths and English, each consist of an overall programme document including Scheme of Work, 10 session plans including Powerpoints and all resources, and a rationale to explain the general thinking behind the sessions. Providers are welcome to use the packages as they see fit although we encourage their use in their entirety.

Additionally the Foundation has commissioned external providers to offer these programmes as external training for the sector and more information about this will be coming soon although plainly places will be limited.
