Answer:

- 9 The information below comes from a recent survey.

The findings of the survey Fitter at 50 contradict the perception that many people wind down their physical activity as they grow older.

More than a quarter of women and 22% of men do more exercise in their 50s than they did in their 30s, the survey found.

Fifteen per cent of men and 19% of women said they belonged to a gym.

However, 29% of over-50s still say they never take any exercise.

The most common reason for trying to stay fit is the benefit to health, highlighted by over half as a reason to exercise.

Sixteen per cent of those surveyed said they exercised to relieve stress and tension.

The 'Fitter at 50' survey of 700 people aged 50 to 60 years old was carried out for Norwich Union Healthcare.

Which word could best replace the word 'perception' on line 1?

- A rumour
- B news
- C view
- D conclusion
