

National Star College – Introduction to Video

A video from National Star College showing a joint training session:

National Star College is an Independent Specialist Residential College for young people with learning and physical disabilities. The training shown compiles extracts from a short session about improving professional boundaries between staff and students.

Joint training with staff and learners was introduced because the college recognised specific topics were relevant in order to improve professional working practice for both parties. By attending learners developed confidence and have the opportunity to put their views across in an adult and respected way. From hearing first-hand the opinions of learners, staff gain valuable insights into the impacts of their actions and understand how their support can impact on the lives of learners, which in turn, better shapes their practice.

Also included are the two case studies discussed in the video and comments from the staff and students attending the session.

Fiona Voysey