

Intervention Strategies

Transition programme

It is clear from the evidence available that students that enrol late are generally high risk. They tend to be less motivated and more likely to have behaviour management issues. Missing induction means that they find it harder to integrate with their peers and to get to grips with college systems and procedures, and of course they have to catch up with coursework and assessment

Referral criteria

- Late enrolments, i.e. those recruited up to the first half-term and who missed induction week.

Programme details

The programme runs for 4 days each week to support students make a smooth progression to their chosen vocational course. It is important that vocational teaching staff are able to support the programme and make regular (daily) contact with their learners. The programme includes:

- College induction
- Vocational induction
- Transport and financial guidance
- Assessment catch-up sessions
- Team building
- Study Skills
- Overcoming barriers to success
- H&S and personal protective equipment