In our ever changing society it is important now more than ever that we all understand the effects our actions have on the future of our planet.

Sustainability means to meet the needs of the present without compromising the ability of our future generations to meet their own needs.

Sustainability @ SRC is an enterprising event organized by the second year business students within Stockton Riverside College. We are here for one day offering a range of stalls and fun fair themed recycling games in order to bring you increased understanding and awareness of sustainability and recycling.

Profile of Businesses

Bags of Fun – a trip to a local forest school inspired Level 1 childcare students to set up their own business making and selling treasure bags for young children. The treasure bags are an inexpensive activity toy made from sustainable materials, safe, fun for young children to enjoy

Rugs Galore – using the skills for one of their peers, the Level 2 Public Services students spotted an opportunity to sell mats and carpet runners made from carpet waste. Very affordable and a range of different colours and sizes available. A great way of recycling materials that would normally head straight for the skip.

Head to Toe – an enthusiastic group of Level 2 Hairdressing students were determined to try out their entrepreneurial skills but found it difficult to source appropriate sustainable hairdressing products to sell. Not to be deterred, they identified an opportunity to make and sell hair accessories from recycled textile materials.

SRC Fair traders – as part of their Personal, Social Development programme, students from Level 1 IT took a keen interest in Fair Trade. They sourced a local supplier and have set up their own stall selling fair trade goods donating any monies raised to the Fair Trade charity

Dig and Dine – a last minute entry for this group of Level 3 Business students. Crockery and gardening tools are the theme for this market stall. The group believe that with increase in popularity of home accessories, gardening and TV programmes such as Bargain Hunters, they are confident in making a good profit

Smurfs – another group of Level 1 IT students studying Personal, Social and Development as part of their vocational course were keen to practice their enterprising skills. Realising a group of students were already selling bird boxes on another stall, the students identified an opportunity to capture their customers and decided to make and sell bird food i.e. fat balls

Easter Bird Boxes – these students are no strangers to the Enterprise markets with their very successful bird boxes. The Level 1 Prevocational Construction students are determined to prove their entrepreneurial skills making and selling bird boxes. Made from recycled materials and helping to promote the importance of encouraging wildlife into gardens, this group is going all out to win the competition this time.

Synergy – students from the European Challenge team are running a tombola stall to raise money for a trip to Austria in the summer. The group will be taking part in a community project working with unemployed young adults designing and setting up an alternative energy park. The money raised will be used to buy equipment and resources for the project.

Matty's Bistro – this is a guest group sponsored by Stockton Borough Council who are part of a 15 week project. The group will be making and selling a range of savoury pies made from locally sourced produce.
